The Pencil Line

The Pencil Line project began in September 2014 and was set up by artist Rebecca Swindell in partnership with Virgin West Coast Trains LTD. The project, which will run until October 2015, creates an online gallery of drawings produced by people travelling on trains.

A number of the drawings submitted have been selected for volume 2 of the project's ebook editions. They are available through our website ThePencilLine.com in PDF and ebooks editions.

The book aims to highlight individual drawings and tell you a little more about the artists who contributed and their inspiration.

The project also involves a series of drawing workshops to be held on the train line for community artist groups. These responses can be found in the artist group section.

With special thanks to Virgin West Coast Trains LTD and all their wonderful staff particularly Helen Reid, Sue Howarth, Harry Dunning and Sharon South who have made this project possible for us all.

The artists Deborah Aguirre Jones, Val Drayton and Georgina Huntley. Project mentor Clare Thornton and website designer Dane Watkins eatmydata and to the artist group who visited Bradford on Avon.

And to all those who have contributed, Many Thanks!

'I often draw on trains as there are always lots of models to choose from, although people will keep moving about which makes the drawing more difficult. One also has to be careful to observe surreptitiously as one does not want to be thought to be staring. In this drawing I have tried to give a flavour of the various places and things we passed by on our journey.'
